Fighting the good fight

Casey County's annual Relay for Life event, themed Casey vs. Cancer, was held Friday night at the Central Kentucky AG/EXPO Center. Here, survivors of the deadly disease came together to make one unified lap, in celebration and hope for the future. This year's all-night relay raised more than $90,000 for the fight against cancer. Casey County Relay for Life raises more than $90,000

Food, fun, and fund-raising filled the air Friday evening as members of the Casey County community came together under one roof to participate in the annual Relay for Life.

"I think everyone really enjoyed themselves," said Chairperson Nicki Tarter. "I have heard nothing but positive remarks about the event."

The all-night event was a time to honor loved ones lost to cancer, give strength to those currently fighting the disease, and celebrate with those who have survived the deadly disease.

Among the 80 or so cancer survivors in attendance was Casey County native Nancy Bastin.

After visiting the Markey Cancer Center of Lexington in 2010, for what Bastin believed would be a routine mammogram, she received a life-changing call from her doctor. During the phone call Bastin was informed that her mammogram results showed an abnormal spot in her breast.

"I said to the doctor 'Tell me now, do you think it's cancer?'" Bastin said, "He said 'yes.'"

Bastin chose to undergo a combined treatment of lumpectomy surgery and radiation which has proven to be succesful.

"I'm cancer-free so far," Bastin said.

Despite being cancer-free now, Bastin is still faced with the aftermath of the disease and side effects caused by post-treatment medications, such as an estrogen blocker, which she said is causing her bones to slowly deteriorate. Still, Bastin believes she is luckier than most who have to face this disease.

"I feel real fortunate," Bastin said, "I'm healthier than most people who have cancer."

Nancy is not the only member of her family who has been plagued by this disease.

Her husband passed away on May 1, 2011, due to post-radiation complications.

Even worse, her sister, Shirley Grooms, was diagnosed with bladder cancer about a year ago.

After undergoing an operation to remove the tumor, Shirley said they were able to remove all of it. She goes back to the doctor every three months and remains proactive in her recovery.

Shirley's husband, Vic, joined in the Relay for Life festivities, celebrating his wife and sister-in-law's ability to overcome cancer.

Voters take to the polls Tuesday

By Larry Rowell
Editor

With absentee voting under way in County Clerk Casey Davis' office, most voters will take to the polls to vote in Tuesday's May 20 primary election.

The county has 10,857 registered voters. Of those, Republicans number 8,585 while Democrats total 1,994. Other party registrations are 278.

Polling places for those 10,000-plus voters will open at 6 a.m. and close at 6 p.m.

Davis said he has words of advice for voters, especially for those who might not have lived here for very long.

"It would be a good idea to take some form of identification showing your physical address. Not all poll workers will know everyone," Davis said.

Additionally, Davis said that if anyone has a question about where they vote, they are asked to call his office at 787-6471, and preferably well in advance of Tuesday's primary.

Former mayor Humphrey Elliott dies

By Larry Rowell
Editor

Humphrey Elliott may have been a bachelor, but by all accounts, he was married to a life of community service and selfless efforts to make Liberty and Casey County a better place to live and work.

ELLIOTT

Elliott died on Sunday in Zionsville, Ind. at the age of 81.

Elliott is widely remembered as a politician, educator, farmer, veteran of the United States Air Force, and friend to all.

He was appointed mayor of Liberty in 1994 and served until 1998 when he lost his seat to current Mayor Steve Sweeney.

"I ran against him in my first race and I couldn't have asked for a nicer opponent. He was a gentleman through and through."

And even after the election, Elliott and Sweeney remained good friends.

"He was always very kind to me afterwards and

McConnell makes campaign stop in Liberty

By Larry Rowell
Editor

What normally is an amiable stop in Liberty for Sen. Mitch McConnell became a little more dramatic this past weekend.

McConnell, Kentucky's senior legislator in the U.S. Senate, made an appearance at the Central Kentucky AG/EXPO Center late Saturday morning, the first of three campaign stops in the area.

Before his arrival, two unidentified videographers entered the Pork Producers Building and awaited his arrival.

But once members of McConnell's staff saw the pair, Lt. Ronnie Smith of the Liberty Police Department was dispatched to escort a woman from the building. The man left voluntarily when asked to.

The pair was asked to leave the building on the grounds that the McConnell campaign rented the building and therefore, it was an event for "credentialed" media only, said Allison Moore, media spokesperson for McConnell.

Moore declined to identify the two except to say that they "aren't from Kentucky."

The only credentialed media believed to be at the event was a videographer with the Louisville Courier Journal and the editor of The Casey County News.

County Judge-Executive Ronald Wright confirmed on Monday that the McConnell campaign had contacted his office recently about renting the building.

However, Wright said that the campaign would be billed for the $75 usage fee, which he said is normal for some events to be billed afterwards.

Once McConnell's entourage arrived, the 75 or so attendees were in their seats and ready to greet McConnell and his wife, Elaine Chao, who served for eight years as U.S. Secretary of Labor in President George W. Bush's Cabinet.

EDITORIAL

Exercise your right to vote

The most enduring freedom that we have as Americans is our right to choose our government officials. Countless American men and women have paid the ultimate sacrifice on the field of battle and yet, we take this freedom to vote for granted.

While citizens in third world nations stand in line for hours to cast a single vote, the majority of Americans will forego their right to vote in next Tuesday's primary elections.

Why do so many of our residents take this for granted and stay away from the polls?

Laziness, combined with the thought that a single vote doesn't count, being too busy, name your poison.

And yet, some of those who didn't vote will openly criticize our elected officials for decisions they make. No vote, no right to complain.

So we urge all registered voters to take 15 minutes to go and vote for the candidate that you believe will lead and help our county to continue to be among the best places to live in Kentucky and America.

Good for the goose, good for the gander?

Sen. Mitch McConnell's arrival in Liberty is usually like a family member who lives far away coming to attend a family reunion. It's a genial time, with a lot of smiling, hugging, and telling of remembrances from his previous visits which span a period of three decades.

McConnell and his wife, former Secretary of Labor Elaine Chao made a campaign stop on Saturday at the Central Kentucky AG/EXPO Center.

Well liked and supported in Casey County, Kentucky's senior senator has done a great deal for the county, most notably his securing funds to assist in the purchase and building of the Ag Center.

And, as he is want to do, McConnell starts each speech and tells the same old story about arriving years ago in Casey County and saying that he noticed the sign for Yosemite coming into Liberty. Only he pronounced it Yo-simmittee, and not Yo-suh-mite. He said an older gentlemen in the crowd later corrected his pronunciation.

The visit on Saturday contained a bit of drama before McConnell arrived and I have mixed feelings about it.

Two videographers quietly entered the building to attend the event, which was widely publicized as being open to the public.

Only they were asked to leave, with only a vague explanation from the McConnell camp that they had been disruptive and "were not from Kentucky." One, a young lady, was escorted from the building by Liberty police.

Well, I'm not from Kentucky either but I was allowed to stay and cover the event, possibly because I'm not disruptive?

What troubles me most about this is McConnell's campaign personnel said they rented the Pork Producers Building and therefore, this was a private event open only to credentialed media.

A public venue that McConnell himself secured public tax dollars to build, with invitations being sent to the public to attend, and two people are asked to leave?

As a proponent of the First Amendment freedom of the press, I object to asking them to leave. While there may have been some disruption, I didn't hear or see anything. No shouting, heckling, or sign waving.

What about the annual Fancy Farm picnic, where there is heckling, shouting, and sign waving? Nobody escorted out for doing that.

In the world today, anyone armed with a smartphone camera, instant messaging, and Facebook has the ability to practice their brand of journalism. And, they should be allowed to record a politician who's paid with tax dollars speaking in a public place.

But at least McConnell's opponent sees this differently.

When the Bevin campaign came to Liberty several weeks ago, a young woman by the name of McKenzie, from McConnell's campaign, was there to record him. Bevin said that she has followed him with a video camera all across the state.

During his stop at the Village Restaurant, McKenzie, who Bevin said is a political science major at the University of Kentucky, kept her camera at the ready to catch those memorable sound bites about MIT resumés and cockfighting.

Some of Bevin's people went over and greeted her warmly. She wasn't asked to leave.

Bevin could have claimed his visit was private but he didn't. Again, she was granted free access to the venue.

First Amendment rights should extend to all, even if there are some we might not like.

God bless America.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

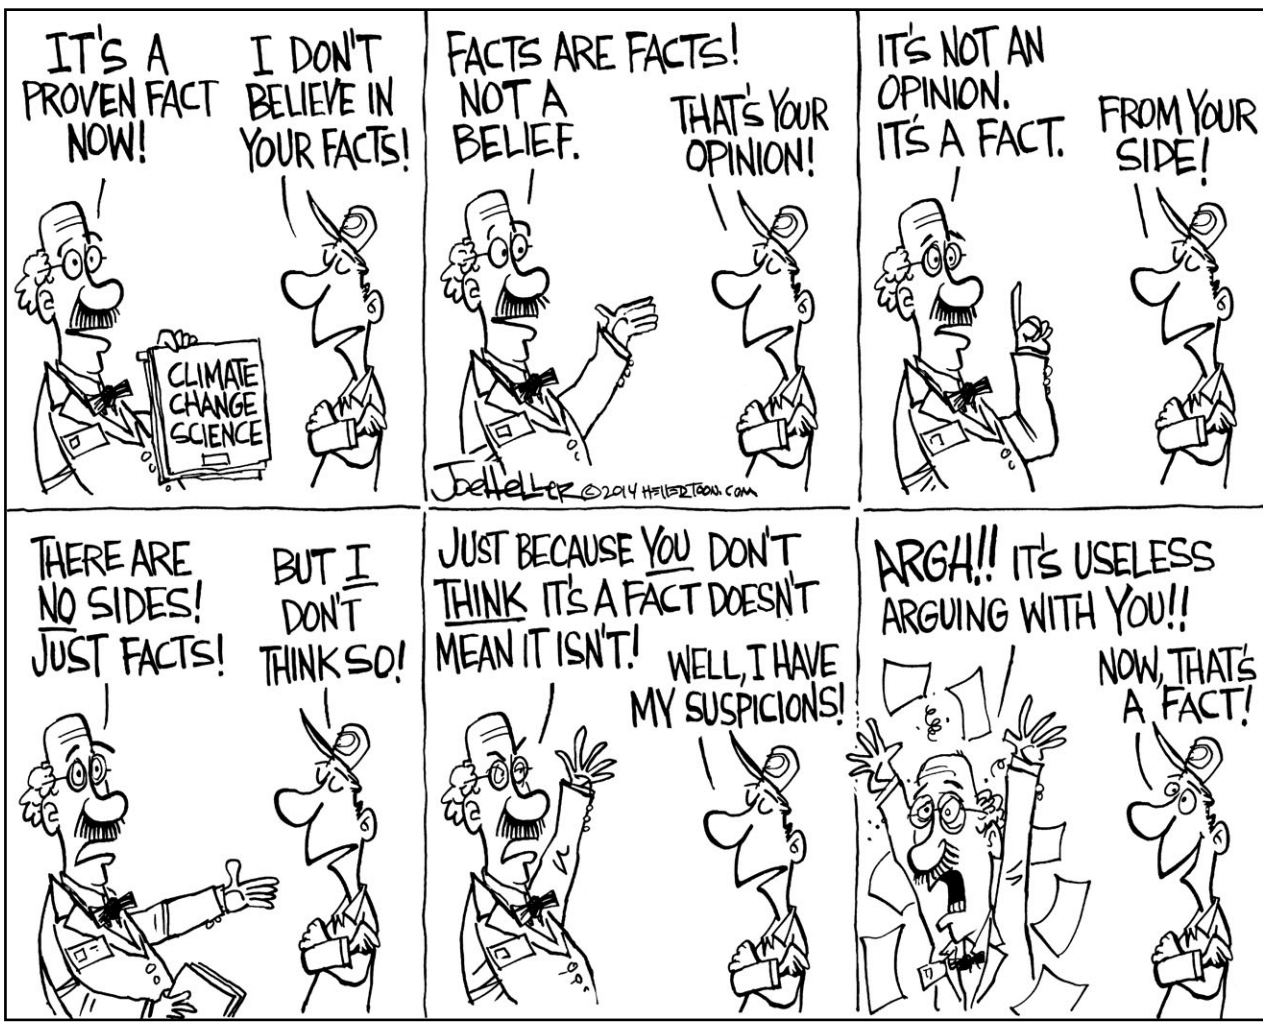

Warn children not to open roadside boxes

Last week, I found a box (that looked like Federal Express) on the side of Upper Brush Creek Road. It was wrapped in plastic. Curious, I pulled it out of the ditch and opened it. It was a precious little fat puppy that died with no oxygen. Whoever did this has our Lord to answer to.

The reason I'm writing this is to tell the public never to open a box like this. Call the sheriff and let him have it checked out.

Meth by-products, after they make meth, are thrown out on the side of the road the same way. It could have exploded in my face. My son is the one who told me. So warn your children never to open a box they find.

Safety first....no, seriously

I received a bit of a wake up call last Thursday. I was in my usual "working while daydreaming" state of mind when my cell phone vibrated. It was a text from my boyfriend, Alex, and all it said was, "I think I may have cut my finger off."

Alex is quite the jokester who knows better than anyone how easy it is to get me riled up, so my immediate thought was, "Uh-huh, a dramaticized hangnail. Nice try, bud. " I texted him back asking for a little more information. I then received a picture of a blurry, bloodied hand wrapped in gauze resting on what looked to be a emergency room bed.

"YOU DID WHAT?!" Obviously I bypassed the whole text messaging business and made a direct call demanding answers.

Five minutes later, I was on my way to Stanford's Ephraim McDowell Fort Logan Hospital.

To put it nicely, which I am struggling to do, I have visited Fort Logan Hospital on four different occasions, three of which were emergencies, and not once have I ever received the attention or care that I believe to be acceptable.

I am by no means a hard person to please. I know good and well how hard nurses and doctors work day and night to provide care, comfort, and treatment to those in need. But, when I walked into the hospital I saw that my boyfriend was the only patient in the emergency area. And when I walked into his room I saw him with his eyes closed and his t-shirt clenched between his teeth.

I asked him if they had given him anything for pain. He told me they had given him a small dose and that no one had returned to his room for over 30 minutes. After almost two hours of being ignored and watching my boyfriend still bleeding and cringing in pain we decided to head to a specialist in Lexington. Within about three minutes, Alex's finger was numbed and surgery was scheduled.

I have a point, believe it or not, and it's not about poor hospital service. My real point here is one of safety.

I have spent the last decade of my life working with my dad on the farm, operating heavy machinery and farm equipment. Thankfully, I still have each of my limbs, though there have been some rather scary close calls. As time passes and we become well aquainted with the every day operation of loud, dangerous machinery, it is easy to forget exactly what we are working with. Particular tasks that begin as a two-man (WOMAN) operation, with time and familiarity, become a one-man operation.

As Alex was attempting to hook our tractor up to our hay baler, he gave the PTO shaft a great big heave (its never easy to slide on or off) and as he did, the weight of the shaft fell on his hand, smashing it against a metal base.

Something as simple as a decent pair of work gloves may have lessened the injury Alex suffered. So many safety precautions fade away and it isn't until someone gets hurt that you realize how important they really are.

So, no matter how annoying they may become, wear your gloves. And most importantly, if you are dealing with what you know to be a heavy piece of equipment or otherwise related material, make sure there is someone with you to act as a spotter, or to share the weight with you.

Do these things and hopefully your significant other will never ask you, "Baby, would ya still love me if I only had 9 and a half fingers?"

nails," Grooms said.

This year's relay, with the theme "Casey Vs. Cancer," raised around $90,376.34. Though this year's fundraising did not surpass the $100,000 goal that was set, every penny will work toward finishing the fight against cancer.

While relay participants made their laps, the Ware Brothers performed a variety of bluegrass and classical country songs.

Among the popular activities of this year's Relay for Life was the "best dressed newspaper superhero" contest. Each of the 21 teams were given newspapers and one roll of tape with which to make a super hero costume.

"I think the contest went extremely well," Tarter said. "It seemed to be a really big hit."

New to this year's Relay for Life event was the 5K relay option and with 25 or so participants it proved to be successful, Tarter said.

Those who participate in the annual Relay for Life event have yet another chance to aid the cause. Partnering with the American Cancer Society, the Kentucky Blood Center will donate $5 per completed blood donation. To complete the donation you must present your coupon with Casey Relay and your team's relay name filled out.

For more information regarding blood drive dates, locations and coupons, email rflofcaseycounty@gmail.com.

Election

As far as changes from the 2012 elections, voters in Casey 2 (the old Dunnville precinct) will now vote in the new Dunnville Christian Church building.

Voters in Casey 4, who formerly voted at St. Bernard's Catholic Church, will vote at the Clementsville Fire Station on West Ky. 70.

As was the law in past elections, there can be no loitering or campaigning within 300 feet of a polling place. For those who will be out of town next Tuesday, absentee voting is under way at Davis' office through the close of business at 4:30 p.m. Monday.

Also, if any voter has missed the deadline to apply for an absentee ballot, and has experienced a medical emergency, they may still apply by calling Davis' office.

Elliott

the last few years he was in Liberty, he visited City Hall often and we sat and talked and he told me his Korean war stories. He was a great storyteller and conversationalist," Sweeney said. "He was kind to a fault to everybody."

City Clerk Sharleen Rodgers also has fond memories of Elliott and the work he did as mayor.

"He was a wonderful mayor who guided the city through some difficult times," she said.

A Republican, Elliott served as County Chairman of his party. He also attended the Republican National Convention.

Another quality Elliott is being remembered for was his ability to handle many responsibilities well.

"He wore many hats. He was an educator, farmer, and mayor and he served many years on the board of directors of Casey County Bank. He took each job very seriously," said former Liberty Mayor Garland Hoskins.

As an educator, Elliott served in a variety of roles, from teaching to administration.

He taught and coached at Crab Orchard, Middleburg and Liberty High schools, serving as principal at Phillips Elementary and Casey County High School.

"He was an educator to the highest level. We have two daughters and he was always interested in their careers. He wanted students to excel," Hoskins said.

Another love in Elliott's life was raising cattle on his farm in Willow Springs, on Ky. 1649.

"He was always interested in his farming. He wanted to show people the quality of his cattle and always tried to have a good bloodline of cattle. He really took care of them," said Tim Goodlett.

Funeral services for Humphrey Elliott will be on Saturday, May 17, at 10 a.m. at Bartle Funeral Home in Liberty with burial to follow in the Antioch Cemetery.

A full obituary can be found on page 4 in today's paper.

McConnell

Speech

The Senate Minority Leader deviated little from his script delivered on previous occasions in Liberty where he hammered what he said was the Obama administration's hijacking of the health care system, the continuing economic recession, and the EPA's relentless attack on the coal industry.

"The last six years have been tough for the kind of America that you and I believe in, really tough. Trillion dollar spending, takeover of America's healthcare, and bureaucrats crawling over every business in America with the view that if you're making a profit, you must be up to no good," he said.

McConnell cited as an example an EPA regulation "that if it goes through, there'll never be another coal fired plant in America. And they're not stopping there. The next regulation that's coming along is going to target existing coal plants...that's shutting down the coal industry."

McConnell urged attendees to go to the polls and re-elect him and "send a big victory for your senator, hoping to be the majority leader of the Senate next year. I've enjoyed being the defensive coordinator but you know the offensive coordinator gets to call the plays," McConnell said, drawing applause from the crowd.

Opponent

Even though McConnell faces political newcomer Matt Bevin in the May 20 primary, polls have indicated that Bevin poses little threat to McConnell.

But that isn't the case with his opponent in November's general election when he must defeat Democratic challenger Alison Lundergan Grimes.

On Saturday, McConnell only referred to Grimes by name in a passing reference to turning America around.

"Now my opponent will argue that she's a new face and she is a new face. But she's a new face to do what? She's a new face for no change at all. She's a new face for the very same senate we have now," he said.

For McConnell, he said change for America can only come about at the ballot box. And, that he said, has to begin in November by picking up Republican senate seats in key battleground states such as West Virginia, North Carolina, Louisiana, Arkansas, South Dakota, Montana, and Alaska.

Still, McConnell wants to lead the charge by becoming the senate majority leader.

"I'm actually the change agent in this campaign. If you're not happy with our country and you want to go in a different direction, the only thing that can be achieved this year is to change the senate to begin to change America."

Former first lady Martha Wilkinson dies

By Larry Rowell
Editor

Hailed as a champion of adult literacy and education reform, former Kentucky first lady Martha Wilkinson died of natural causes on May 7 at a hospital in Sarasota, Fla. She was 72.

Wilkinson's husband, Wallace, served as governor from 1987-1991. Wallace died in 2002 at the age of 60.

Raised in Casey County and high school sweethearts, the Wilkinsons married in 1960, built a business empire and then entered politics.

Liberty attorney David McAnelly, who served as Wilkinson's chief of staff in Frankfort, said that Martha was an ideal fit for her husband.

"I remember her mostly for being so energetic. She was the governor's right hand woman," McAnelly said.

Part of that energy was channeled into being a gracious host at the governor's mansion.

"At one stretch in the first and second year, we had every county official, from every county, bar none, up to the mansion for dinner. All the county judges, all the sheriffs, county clerks, we did that for six to 10 months once or twice a week," he said.

Another part of that energy was directed toward "Martha's Army," her initiative to fight adult illiteracy by promoting the G.E.D. test throughout the state.

McAnelly also said that Mrs. Wilkinson was a conservationist, involved in the planting of trees and other environmental concerns in Kentucky.

Louise Wesley, another Casey Countian, spent a great deal of time traveling with the Wilkinsons as they campaigned for governor across the state.

Wesley, a journalist and photojournailst, had exclusive access to the Wilkinsons the night of the inauguration in being granted the first interview. As with others, Wesley remembers Mrs. Wilkinson as a hard worker but also as someone who loved people.

"Martha was a friendly lady, a lovely lady. She was a hard worker. Any time there was a job to be done, she was right there in the middle of it," Wesley said.

In 1991, when her husband couldn't seek a second four-year term because of term limits, Mrs. Wilkinson announced her candidacy for governor. "She made an attempt at the governor's insistence but when she saw she couldn't win, she gracefully bowed out. Brereton Jones' numbers were quite a bit higher than hers were and rather than create a rift in the party, she gracefully withdrew," McAnelly said.

Still, Mrs. Wilkinson left her impact not only on Casey County but on all of Kentucky.

"She was a feisty, interesting, and fascinating lady. She and Wallace both were a proud son and daughter of Casey County who did well both in politics and in business. I knew and liked them both. We'll miss her," said Kentucky Sen. Mitch McConnell, on Saturday.

In Memory of Paul Roy

Happy Birthday May 14, 1936

In memory of my brother, Paul Roy, who went to Heaven Dec. 19, 2014.

Paul, you were much more than my brother. You were always my best friend. You always came down the last week in May and spent the week with us. We would go to the cemeteries and decorate the graves. I was always so happy to see you when you came, but so sad when it was time for you to go home. Brother, the next time we meet, we'll never have to say goodbye. For we'll be in Heaven together! Forever! Love forever!

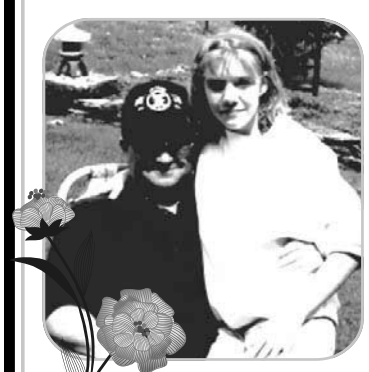

Your sister Nina, brother Walt and your best friend for 65 years, Kenneth

Corvette museum may keep sinkhole

Bowling Green Daily News

After seeing attendance jump since eight Corvettes were swallowed by a sinkhole, National Corvette Museum officials in Bowling Green are considering keeping the pit as an attraction.

Attendance at the museum rose 56 percent in March and 48 percent in April after the 40-foot sinkhole formed Feb. 12, museum spokeswoman Katie Frassinelli said.

Current visitors can see the sinkhole and museum officials are considering installing a glass floor or bridge above the hole. Stairs that would take visitors into the hole are also being considered, Frassinelli said.

"The sinkhole is a part of not only the museum's history but also Corvette history," Frassinelli said in an email. "We are in the business to preserve the history of the car – which now includes a sinkhole."

Workers exhumed the last of the eight Corvettes in March. According to the museum's blog, General Motors representatives will meet with museum officials this month to inspect each of the cars and determine which will be restored.

The Corvettes that are not restored will be kept as part of a permanent display about the sinkhole.

Retired dairy farmer killed in accident

Sentinel-News

The community of Shelby County was shocked by the tragic death May 7 of a retired dairy farmer who was killed when the riding mower he was driving to his mailbox was struck by a pickup truck.

The death of Herman Moore, 87, is made even more tragic by the fact that the other driver, whom police have declined to identify because he is a minor, was not at fault, police said.

"He was a 17-year-old high school student who had just started driving," said Shelby County Sheriff's detective Jason Rice.

He added that the young man told him that he was watching Moore, and slowed down considerably to ease on by him.

"Then when he got close to him, he [Moore] started crossing, and he [other driver] couldn't stop," he said.

Dave Charlton, pastor of First Christian Church, who will preside at Moore's funeral, said in addition to grieving over Moore, he also felt bad for the driver.

"I feel so sorry for that young man; I really do," he said.

Charlton said that Moore was one of the first members of the church to welcome him when he became pastor at First Christian, and they have been good friends ever since.

"Herman was such a nice person, a really sweet, kind man, he really was," he said. "He was an old school gentleman and I mean that in the best way. And the thing is, I'm not really sure that he ever knew how much he was loved in our congregation. He was very humble. He didn't like you to make a fuss over him. But he deserved it, if anybody did."

Moore, a lifelong dairy farmer, had moved to Harrington Mill road after retiring from the dairy business in Simpsonville. He and his late wife, Doris, had one child, Linda; she and her husband, Mike live in Simpsonville. He also had three grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Woman arrested for DUI after bus crash

Harlan Daily Enterprise

A Harlan County Schools bus loaded with elementary students was involved in a minor wreck Thursday morning, leading to the arrest of a woman for DUI.

According to Mike Cox, transportation director for Harlan County Schools, the bus was transporting students to school on Ky. 38 when a vehicle crossed the center line and sideswiped the bus.

Cox said there were no injuries. The bus suffered only minor damage. Kentucky State Police Trooper Jared Boggs said Sherry Wilson, 51, of Lejunior, the driver of the 2011 Chevrolet Silverado pickup truck involved in the crash, was arrested and charged with operating a motor vehicle under the influence of alcohol or drugs and expired registration. Wilson was lodged in the Harlan County Detention Center.

Two charged with shooting car windows

Messenger Enquirer

Two Daviess County men were charged with felony wanton endangerment Thursday morning after allegedly building a sniper's platform in a West Fifth Street Road home and firing BB guns at passing vehicles.

Three vehicles had windows shot out, and two children in one of the vehicles suffered minor injuries from flying glass.

The incident began about 6:30 a.m. when a motorist in the 5200 block of West Fifth Street Road reported having a car window apparently shot out. Daviess County Sheriff's Department Deputy Troy Calvert was sent to the area to talk to the motorist.

"While I was taking a report on Skyline Drive, we saw another (vehicle) get shot," Calvert said. "We saw glass flying off the window." At that time, "we didn't know it was a BB gun."

Additional deputies were called to the area, and they were able to determine the home from where the shots were fired.

"I could literally follow the glass trail back to the house," Calvert said.

Deputy Tyler Free, who also responded to the scene, said deputies made contact with two men in the house, who were later identified as Ry J. Riney, 20, of the 5200 block of West Fifth Street Road and Caleb W. Dennis, 19, of the 5400 block of West Fifth Street Road.

"They had a homemade sniper nest in one of the front bedrooms," Free said. "They were using the front window to shoot out" at vehicles, he said.

In the home, deputies found two BB rifles, a BB pistol, carbon dioxide cartridges used to fire the weapons, a 6,000-count bottle of BBs and a 2,400-count bottle of BBs, a mostly empty bottle of vodka and drug paraphernalia.

Calvert said Riney and Dennis initially denied involvement in the shootings but became "apologetic" when they learned about the two injured juveniles. Riney and Dennis were both charged with five counts of first-degree wanton endangerment, one count for each of the five people who were in the three vehicles struck by BBs; the charge is a felony, punishable upon conviction by up to five years in prison. The pair were also charged with third-degree criminal mischief, possession of drug paraphernalia and possession of alcohol by a person under age 21. Riney and Dennis were being held in the Daviess County Detention Center.

Rebels upset Russell County, first time in 17 years

By Rita "Peat" Harris
Sports Correspondent

On May 6, it was a night for the books for the Casey County baseball team. The Rebels upset the Russell County Lakers in a 4-3 victory, proving what Coach Greg Hammond has said all season long, that this group of athletes has a lot of potential.

"I told you before the season, we have the opportunity to surprise somebody," said Hammond. "I was so excited for them. They really did all that on their own. They motivated themselves and they were excited and they were on a mission."

In addition to the victory, Casey also picked up two losses, falling to Lincoln County and Clinton County. Their overall record is now 5-18 (0-6).

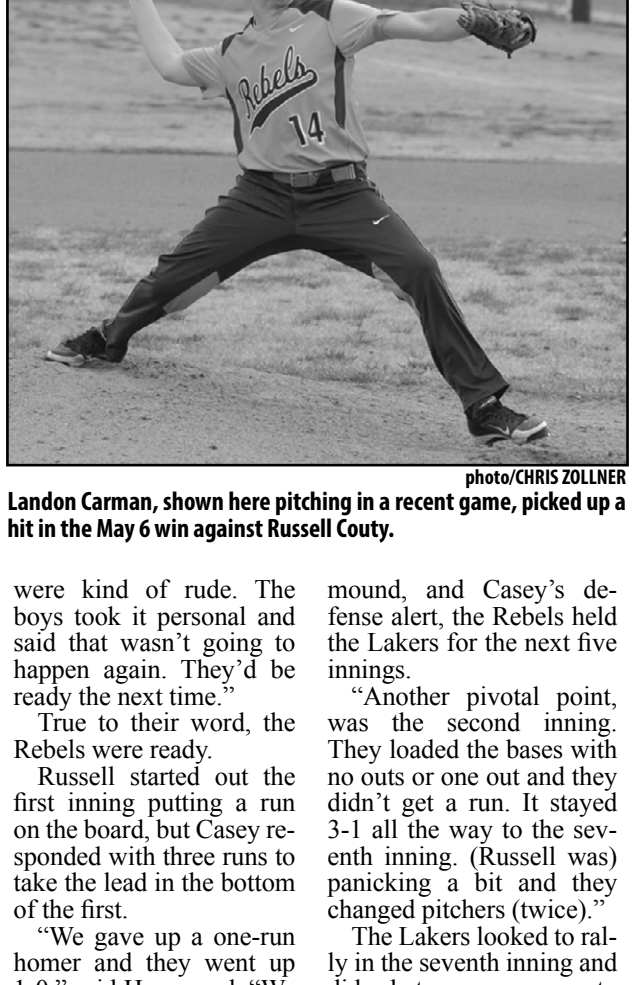

vs. Russell County

Whether it was a vendetta, the four-day break prior to the game, or the Lakers' misjudgment of the Rebels, Casey County took down Russell County for the first time in 17 years last Tuesday night.

"They're a ranked opponent," Hammond said about the Laker team. "(They were) 19-5 going into Tuesday and had beaten everyone in our district twice including Somerset the night before."

Casey, who has yet to beat any teams in the 47th District, lost at the hands of Russell County on Mar. 28, 13-0. The Laker team is now 21-6 (6-0) and ranked at the top of the 4th Region.

"(My team) had a chip on their shoulder," Hammond said about the previous loss. "(Russell) kind of disrespected us a bit and were kind of rude. The boys took it personal and said that wasn't going to happen again. They'd be ready the next time."

Landon Carman, shown here pitching in a recent game, picked up a hit in the May 6 win against Russell Couty.

True to their word, the Rebels were ready.

Russell started out the first inning putting a run on the board, but Casey responded with three runs to take the lead in the bottom of the first.

"We gave up a one-run homer and they went up 1-0," said Hammond. "We looked really good in the field. In the bottom of the first Jonathan Gillock gets on and steals second...Matt Sharp gets a two-run home run."

Before getting their third out, senior Hunter Christian also crossed the plate for the team's third run.

"They meant business and were playing really well," said Hammond. "I could tell (Russell had) overlooked us and they really weren't taking us serious."

With Gillock, a freshman, on the pitcher's mound, and Casey's defense alert, the Rebels held the Lakers for the next five innings.

"Another pivotal point, was the second inning. They loaded the bases with no outs or one out and they didn't get a run. It stayed 3-1 all the way to the seventh inning. (Russell was) panicking a bit and they changed pitchers (twice)."

The Lakers looked to rally in the seventh inning and did what was necessary to give themselves a fighting chance by scoring two runs to tie the score 3-3.

Hammond said he still had faith in his boys.

"I could tell by the look on their faces they were ready to roll. We were at the top of the lineup (Gillock)," said Hammond.

Gillock and Sharp, a junior, both got on base and with no outs, Christian was up to bat.

"I definitely needed (a bunt). It gets to be a 1-1 count. I'm crowding the plate (to shake the pitcher)," said Hammond. "Hunter comes around to bunt and it's a wild pitch."

With the wild pitch, Gillock and Sharp went for base steals. The Lakers threw to third in attempt to get Gillock out but overthrew.

"(Gillock) slid into third. Russell overthrows it and I'm screaming to get up and go."

Gillock did take advantage of the Russell County error and ran in to get the sole run Casey needed to take the 4-3 victory and break the 17-year losing streak.

"It was kind of funny to see. On paper, there is no way we beat these guys," said Hammond, who is originally from and still lives in Russell County. "We may be young, but we're really dangerous. If you over look us and try to save your pitcher, you could wind up in trouble."

Casey finished with seven hits and 20 putouts of 31 total chances. Freshman first baseman Alex Price had eight putouts.

vs. Lincoln County

The Rebels fell 11-1 to Lincoln County (9-23, 0-6) on Thursday coming off of the Russell County upset.

"Basically, we spent everything we had to beat Russell," said Hammond. "We still had the emotional high, but we were a little flat."

Hammond's original plan was to save freshman Blaine Sharp to pitch the Lincoln game while Gillock pitched against Russell, but with the close Laker contest, the coach changed up the game plan and used both pitchers on Tuesday.

"They were available as far as KHSAA wise but they weren't available to me," said Hammond. "They threw a lot of pitches (in the Russell game)."

Junior Landon Carman and sophomore Nick Goode stepped in for most of Thursday's pitching with Gillock and freshman Kelly Davison each throwing only a few pitches.

Lincoln's triumph was a slow and steady effort, earning no more than three runs in an inning, but scoring in each of the six innings.

Casey's lone run came in the fourth when freshman Dylan Price hit Blaine Sharp in to make the score 7-1.

The Rebels had a total of three hits and had 20 put outs of 35 total chances. They finished with six errors.

vs. Clinton County

After getting out the door with a tie game, in the end the Rebels fell 6-2 to the Clinton County Bulldogs (10-13, 0-6).

After giving up a run in the top of the first, Casey came back to tie the score in the bottom. The teams were 1-1 through the second inning but a rally in the third saw Clinton jump ahead to 5-1.

While Casey held Clinton over the next three innings, they only managed one run. The Bulldogs finished the night with a run in the seventh to bring the final score to 6-2.

Blaine Sharp and Gillock again split up pitching duties with Sharp earning six strikeouts. Casey's runs came from Carman and freshman Drew Lee. Sharp hit two doubles. Casey had 23 putouts, led by Alex Price with eight and senior Hunter Christian with six.

The Rebels traveled to Garrard County last night (see next week's issue for results) and head to Taylor County tomorrow for their final regular season game.

The 47th District tournament kicks off Monday at Rockcastle County. Casey will take on Pulaski County (9-22, 5-1) at 8 p.m. If they win they will face the winner of the Rockcastle/Somerset game on Tuesday at 6 p.m.

Claunch named Lady Rebel basketball coach

By Rita "Peat" Harris
Sports Correspondent

For the first time in nearly two decades, Casey County's regionally known girls' basketball program will be led by a new face. Casey County High School (CCHS) named Todd Claunch the new varsity coach on May 7.

"I can't think of walking in (anywhere) where the young ladies are (better) prepared and lined up (for success)," said Claunch, "But it's a lot like interviewing for the U.K. job; there is going to be a lot of high expectations and I felt like I was up for that."

With four individuals applying for the job, two of which were local, Claunch did not simply walk into the position; however, the administration is confident in his potential.

"He knows basketball," said CCHS Principal Josh Blevins. "He has worked in the AAU programs. I'm looking for that excitement factor that he's going to bring."

"I realize the administration...they probably could have taken a safer route. In a lot of people's eyes, I'm a gamble," said Claunch. "But nobody's going to outwork me. There may be teams that are a little more athletic, but nobody in the 12th Region is going to out work us. We will not lose for lack of effort."

Under the leadership of Salyers, the Lady Rebels won nine district runner-up titles, seven championship titles, six regional runner-up titles and two regional titles.

During his career, the middle and high school programs regularly worked hand-in-hand while Salyers also played a part in developing fundamental skills in youth players through summer camps.

"I'm big on not reinventing the wheel. I'm not messing with success," said Claunch. "You're coming into a program where those things are already established. You're not taking something from the ground, but from where it's at and, not only maintaining it, but taking it a notch above."

Background

Claunch brings 25 years of coaching experience to the Lady Rebel program. His coaching began overseas during his ten years in the military.

"During that time I got the opportunity to coach some international ball," Claunch said, mentioning amateur leagues in locations such as Guam, Japan, and Sicily. "I knew going back it was a passion of mine, and I really enjoyed it and I love working with the kids."

After the military, Claunch settled in the central Kentucky area with a family, including children who took up sports. This led to his involvement in summer leagues and AAU programs, including the Kentucky Premier league, a summer program sponsored by Nike.

"(Invitation only players) play in premier tournaments from (states) all over," Claunch said. "It's a great program and it's about the girls getting their names out there and talents seen."

"Having coached AAU and some international ball I think gives you a unique perspective that he brings to the table," said Athletic Director Victor Black. "He understands not only the KHSAA parameters, but also what kids are looking to do in the summer."

Claunch also has experience coaching within school programs having spent time as Mercer County's eighth grade girls' coach and most recently was an assistant coach at the high school level for six seasons under Coach Chris Souder.

Despite his numerous ventures in coaching girls' basketball, the Lady Rebel position was Claunch's first stab at attaining a varsity head coach position and it was not until this past winter that he was aware of the opening.

"It was pretty late in the season that I bumped into Coach Salyers and we had a conversation," said Claunch. "I have a lot of respect for him as a person and a coach. From that point forward I paid a little more attention to what Casey County had coming back and had coming up."

Like anyone in the area who has had a hand in girls' basketball over the last two decades, Claunch was well aware of the Lady Rebel tradition and even had first hand experience against it.

The Program

Claunch wants his move into the coaching position to be only a stepping stone for building upon the success Salyers brought to the program, but he also knows that will be no easy task.

"Taking it a step further is going to be very difficult here. It's such a rich tradition," said Claunch. "Everyone knows Casey County girls' basketball. It's going to require work, work, work on my part."

"I think our program is in a transitional stage right now losing a 19-year legacy like Coach Salyers," said Blevins. "Mr. Claunch was very knowledgeable in our program's history and players. He called players by name. He was very excited about the program."

In order to help create a smooth transition, the new head coach is excited to have coaches experienced in that rich Lady Rebel tradition joining him on the bench.

"I've met with Coach (Darrell) Barlow and asked him to be the assistant (coach)," said Claunch. "Through middle school I coached against him. I respect him as a person and as a coach and he's been in the program and knows the girls. It's a wealth of knowledge. He's accepted the position and that's huge to me. I want to come in with what's here and what's working."

Claunch said he also hopes to have former volunteer coach Tara Weddle joining his staff.

In addition to having a coaching staff that is well-versed in Lady Rebel basketball, Claunch is excited to have the leadership of five seniors.

"These five seniors have been in the system and have done things a certain way and I'm definitely not going to walk in the door and do things differently. I'm going to build upon things they know and tweak it slightly."

Claunch said he also plans to continue seeing that youth programs for girls basketball are strong.

Style and Philosophy

Claunch says his style of play involves a lot of ball movement and allowing the athletes to express themselves on the court with their individual talents. He is a fan of pressure defense.

"We'll make it a slow transition, though," he said. "We'll start in their comfort zone. It's their team. It's their senior year."

No matter the style of ball Claunch prefers, he understands each season and team will really be dependent on his players.

"You can have a philosophy and a style (defensively and offensively), but if the players don't fit those styles and roles, you have to be able to adapt as a coach."

Beyond the specifics of the sport itself, Claunch values the impact sports can have on individuals.

"Basketball is more than dribbling and shooting. There are life lessons in everything. You've got to realize you're not going to get anything without working for it. You've got to put aside personal goals for the betterment of the group. It's an extension. of education."

Meet the Coach

Beyond being ready to meet his team, Claunch, who will not be teaching in the school system, wants to meet the community that surrounds Lady Rebel basketball. He hopes to not be seen as an outsider of that community.

"It's not me coming to coach Casey County. I am Casey County," said Claunch. "I want to pour my heart and soul into the county."

Claunch is still working to earn his teaching degree to be able to teach in Casey's school system, but will find other ways to connect with the community until he is hired as an educator.

"I know the community is big behind it and I want them to feel welcome," he said, noting the parents in particular. "It's a big time in their life too."

Claunch requested the administration set up a meet and greet at the high school, which will take place tomorrow (May 15) at 6:30 p.m. This is as an opportunity for not just players to meet him, but he encourages parents and any one in the community to come as well.

Claunch will also be featured on the radio during the live coverage of this Friday's spring football game, which begins at 7 p.m.

Only time will tell where the future of Lady Rebel basketball is headed but Claunch and the administration are confident in the potential.

"(The Lady Rebel basketball community is) getting a good, Christian, family based person who values education," said Black. "I think the community is really getting a person who really cares about the program."

"I'm excited to be here. I don't know if nerves have hit me yet, but anxiety has got me right now," said Claunch.

Casey County track team brings home the gold

By Rita "Peat" Harris
Sports Correspondent

Four golds medals, five state qualifiers, and possibly more to come. The girls' track and field team showed well for Casey County this past Saturday at the Region 5 championship hosted by Boyle County.

"I was overall extremely happy," said Coach Jon Vaughn. "The people I (knew) could make it (to state), all made it. The people who I thought could make it, still have an outside chance."

The team achieved four individual regional titles and has five athletes who will move on to the 2A state meet on May 23-24 at the University of Kentucky. The girls' finished third overall at the meet.

Brenna Hayes was one of the few girls' in the meet who earned two regional titles. The seventh grader out-threw her competition in both the discus and shot put events.

Hayes won the discus event with a toss of 99'8", a few inches short of her best. Her throw of 33'9.5" gave her the victory in the shot put.

In addition to Hayes' titles, the Lady Rebels took home gold in two additional field events.

Shelby Stringer defended her 2013 regional title Saturday in the pole vault, clearing 9'0".

Shelby Stringer defended her 2013 regional title in the pole vault, clearing 9'0." Last year she cleared 10'0" at the state competition and tied the 2A state record.

Lakken Miller set a new personal best in the high jump, which earned her a first place finish, clearing 5'2" for the gold. Allison Dallman will also advance to state in the event. She cleared 5'0 to tie Rockcastle County's Tori Phillips; however, due to scratch count, Dallman took third and Phillips earned second.

With four of the seven regional competitions complete, Miller leads the competition with her mark of 5'2". Last season Miller cleared 4'8" at state to earn a 12th place finish.

While she did not earn a gold medal, Tiara Cochran is Casey's only definite state qualifier on the track. She earned the runner-up title in the 100-meter hurdles with a time of 17.40, her best this season.

Aside from the 100-meter event, Cochran is one of Casey's five athletes who are currently in the running for earning at-large bids to the state meet.

In addition to the top two finishers in each of the seven regions qualifying for state, the 10 next-best performances will also advance. Four of the seven regions concluded their regional events this past Saturday. Two regions competed yesterday and the final one will compete this Saturday.

Currently Cochran's time of 51.33 in the 300-meter hurdles, which earned her fifth in Region 5, is in contention to receive one of the at-large bids.

Cochran and Miller, who were joined by Jenna Vaughn and Chelsea Elmore for the 4x400-meter relay, are also waiting on the final regional results to know if their team will get the opportunity to compete again. The team finished sixth in the region with a time of 4:37.22.

Jenna Vaughn has a shot at qualifying in an individual event as well. She was third in the mile in a time of 5:47.44.

Elmore is also currently in the top 10 at-large bids for a second event. She and Dallman were eighth and tenth on the list as of Monday in the 200-meter dash. Elmore ran 28.87 and Dallman ran 28.97, taking seventh and eighth in the event respectively.

Hayes may be joined by Autumn Woods in the shot put. The junior threw 29'6" for fifth place and is also waiting for the final regions to report.

BOYS

The slim boys' team will not be advancing any athletes to the state meet this year.

Eighth grader Noah Brown was the team's top finisher on Saturday. He took sixth in the 800-meter run in a time of 2:15.67.

Freshman Chase Williams ran 5:11.11 in the mile and earned seventh place; however, the time was more than 15 seconds off his best time.

Junior Blake Durham also ran in three events for with his best place being ninth in the 400-meter dash in a time of 58.10.

Noah Laman had a standout day in the field. The freshman set new personal bests and earned ninth and eleventh place finishes.

Laman threw 95'2" in the disc and 34'2.5" in shot.

Those who qualified for state and those in contention continue to train this week alongside the entire middle and elementary school teams who will compete in the middle school state meet this weekend.

Casey girls tennis team loses to a tough Sayre team

By Rita "Peat" Harris
Sports Correspondent

As the 12th Region champions, the Lady Rebel tennis team competed in sectionals at Centre College last weekend, facing the 11th Region champions, Sayre.

Casey lost in the semi-state team competition, falling 5-0.

"Going against such a tough opponent, the victory was in being able to score any games on their opponents and in keeping the opponents on the court long enough to make it a challenging match," said Coach Marvetta Overstreet. "My team accomplished those two things, and for that they can hold their heads high."

Coming in as the two-time 12th Region singles runner-up, Haley Owens faced the defending state singles champion, Madeline Rolph, falling 6-0, 6-0.

"Haley played impressively, staying in the points and playing her best shots," said Overstreet. "This score doesn't show the intensity of their match. It was good preparation for the type of talent she will face at state."

In the number two seed, Amber Pierce, took on Julian Mok, the 11th Region singles runner-up, and lost 6-1, 6-1.

Laci Lee represented Casey in the three seed and fell 6-0, 6-0 , to Alison Harris.

In doubles, the 12th Region runner-up duo of Sara Coffman and Chelsey Lynn took on twin sisters Evelyn and Elizabeth Mechas, falling 6-2, 6-2.

In the second doubles seed, the duo of Madison Lee and Taylor Monday fell 6-0, 6-2.

The team's loss at sectionals brings an end to team play for the Lady Rebels; however, three members will advance to this weekend's state tournament. As regional runners-up, Owens, Coffman and Lynn will compete at state.

The doubles team, Coffman and Lynn, as well as Owens in singles play, competed at the state tournament in 2013 as well. The players and their coach have hopes of bettering their finishes from last year.

In an unusual draw, Owens will face 12th Region opponent Emily Major of Garrard County, whom Owens has defeated twice this season. Major was the 2013 12th Region singles champion but only advanced to the semi-finals this year.

Coffman and Lynn will face a duo from Henry Clay in the doubles tournament.

The tournament begins tomorrow (May 15) at the University of Kentucky's Boone/Downing Tennis Complex in Lexington,.

Lady Rebels drop two games, pick up two

By Rita "Peat" Harris
Sports Correspondent

With two wins and two losses, the Lady Rebel softball team is now 10-14 (3-4) and less than a week out from the district tournament.

"I feel good about where we're at. We've played our best ball the last half of the season. We get better each game," said Coach Bryan Cross.

vs. Wayne County

In a one-run win, Casey took down the Wayne County Lady Cardinals (9-16, 0-4) in a 13-12 victory.

"The girls did a great job for a come back. That's one thing that's matured as the season's gone on," said Cross.

After a scoreless first inning, Wayne knocked in five runs in the top of the second. Casey did not immediately tie it up but the score was leveled at 5-5 by the end of the third inning.

Seniors Amber Wesley and Allison Clark crossed the plate in the second.

Wesley picked up her second run in the third inning while freshman Kyra Eads and sophomore Lauren Wethington also scored.

The top of the fourth hurt the Lady Rebels as Wayne got on base five times due to throwing errors, resulting in five Lady Cardinal runs, making the score 10-5.

Eads was the only Lady Reb to get a hit in the fourth inning and Casey failed to close the gap. Wayne stretched their lead with one more run in the fifth while Casey went three up, three down.

The sixth inning was Casey's time to shine. Defensively they saw three up, three down and then came back for a six-run inning.

Casey saw its first six batters get on base and score before Wayne managed to nail three outs. The score was tied at 11.

Casey walked the first Lady Card who went on to score and give Wayne the edge in the top of the seventh. It was the opponent's only run of the inning, but it meant Casey needed to score to claim the victory.

Score they did, not just one to tie it, but two to make it a win. Sophomore Abby Cravens and Eads both crossed the plate to send Casey to victory, 13-12.

vs. Danville

Few innings and a lot of runs was the story of Casey's game against the Danville Lady Admirals (2-16, 0-3) last Wednesday. Casey prevailed 15-0.

Danville saw only two hits in the three-inning game. The Lady Ads hardly stood a chance from the get-go when the Lady Rebs put up nine runs in the first inning. While Danville did hold Casey to one run in the second inning, five more in the third made it a ball game.

vs. Mercer County

Coming off a high scoring game, Casey failed to earn any runs in their Thursday night contest against Mercer County, falling 6-0. The Lady Rebels previously lost to the Lady Titans (18-12, 2-2) on Apr. 16, 5-3.

Casey's failure to get on base made for a hard loss. Mercer was slow to drive up the score, getting one run in the first inning and none in the second. Their only strong inning was the third, which they had four runners cross the plate to bring the score to 5-0.

The Lady Rebels saw three up, three down in the third and fourth. Christin Terry got a hit in the fifth but was unable to score. Mariah Richardson got a hit in the sixth but, again, did not advance.

Mercer added one more run in the sixth inning to make the final score 6-0.

vs. Lincoln County

Casey lost a heartbreaker to the Lincoln County Lady Patriots (11-9, 1-2) on Friday, going down by a single run, 7-6, scored in the final inning.

Lincoln took the lead from the start with three runs in the first inning. Casey responded, but the second inning saw both teams score twice to make the score 5-2, the Lady Patriots leading.

The Lady Rebs made a slow come back to tie things up by the sixth inning. Eads gave Casey another run in the third, followed by runs from Terry and sixth grader Gena Cravens in the fourth. The score was 5-5.

Both teams went three up, three down in the fifth inning and in the top of the sixth Casey saw its first lead. With two outs, Gena Cravens got on base with a hit and was then batted in by her sister Abby, bringing the Lady Rebels ahead 6-5.

Beginning with the scales in their favor, Casey failed to get on base in the seventh. Lincoln would not just tie up the score in the bottom of the seventh, but they would take the lead and triumph.

The Lady Rebels conclude their regular season this week with games at Garrard County, Russell County and Adair County.

The 47th District tournament kicks off next Monday at Rockcastle County. Casey will take on Somerset at 7:15 p.m. If they win, they will play the winner of the Pulaski/Rockcastle game on Tuesday at 6 p.m.

Mission MAD plans trip to village in Uganda

Casey teens working to make a difference

By Abigail Whitehouse
Staff Writer

Two young Casey County natives were brought together by one common aspiration- to make a difference in the lives of those less fortunate. It is this dream that lead Michael Tucker, 16, and Taylor Monday, 16, to create Mission MAD, "Make a Difference".

Mission MAD is partnering with two other organizations in an effort to make an even bigger difference in the lives of those less fortunate. Those organizations are Uganda Counseling and Support Services (UCSS), which focuses on providing clean water, medical care, education, economic development, counseling and spiritual development to remote communities of Uganda, and Galilean Home Ministries, a non-profit, donation-funded ministry providing children of all ages with a place to call home.

"Mission MAD is an organization that is looking to better the lives of many who are less fortunate by showing them God's love," Tucker said. " Our mission is to help feed, clothe and educate those less fortunate through our own action and by collaborating with like-minded organizations to maximize our impact."

Whether they are supplying canned goods to homeless shelters across the state, or helping to raise funds for other important causes, Mission MAD is making a big difference in many people's lives. And making that difference will carry Tucker and Monday on an international journey.

On June 18, six mission members will travel to the village of Bulike, in Uganda, to aid the UCSS in improving the lives of those living in the community.

"I have always had a passion for working with orphans," Taylor said. "I want to make my life worth something and this seemed like a way to turn that dream into a reality."

Although Taylor said she is not as nervous about the trip as she is excited, she is well aware of how different Uganda, in Africa, is going to be from her home life in Casey County.

With different foods, living situations and languages in the Bulike Village, the trip will give those who are going a first-hand look at how the community lives and how these organizations are helping to improve those conditions.

"It's going to be a very life-changing experience," Taylor said. "I'm not too worried about the food though because I'm always up for trying new things.

In an effort to prepare herself for the drastic transition, Taylor plans on learning a hand full of simple phrases in the village's native tongue.

Co-founder of Mission MAD, Michael Tucker, is equally excited about the trip in June.

"I've never been out of the country," Tucker said. "But this is going to give us a chance to see what is really going on over there, rather than just reading or hearing about it."

Hosted by Mission MAD, Tucker, along with local pastor Marty Shackelford, recently participated in the first "Make A Difference Run and Bike Tour" on Saturday.

The event consisted of a 26 mile run from Liberty to Danville, followed by a 100 mile bike ride from Danville to Louisville. The purpose of the event was to raise money for both Galilean Home Ministries and the UCSS.

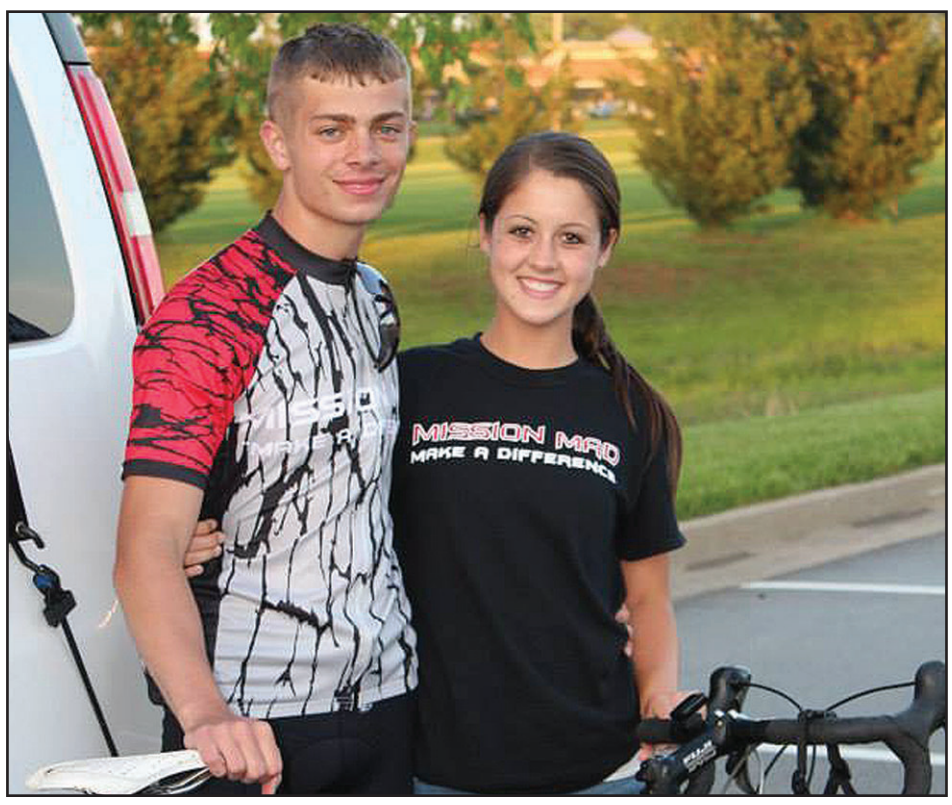

Tucker, who has always had a passion for running and cycling said that the training for the Run and Bike Tour was difficult but that he was ready.

With the departure date for Uganda quickly approaching, the group has received all of the necessary vaccinations including yellow fever and Hepatitis shots, along with malaria medication.

"I'm ready to go now," Monday said.

The mission group hopes to build a new oven for the Bulike Village, where members of the community can bake their own bread. Also, they are taking daily donations of school supplies which they plan to take to the village as well, Monday said.

ABOVE, Marty Shackelford and Michael Tucker participated in the Make A Difference Run and Bike Tour, which was a fundraiser for a village in Uganda and the effort by Mission MAD to improve living conditions there. LEFT, Tucker and Taylor Monday, both 16, created Mission MAD in an effort to help those less fortunate. They plan to travel to Uganda in June.

Mobile Vet Center reaches out to local veterans

By Abigail Whitehouse
Staff Writer

A large recreational vehicle parked it's wheels outside the Pork Producers Building at the Central Kentucky AG/EXPO Center Tuesday evening. Known as Kentucky's Mobile Vet Center (MVC), the vehicle travels across 120 counties reaching out to U.S. military veterans who may not know about all of the benefits and programs available to them.

Kentucky's veteran population, as of December 2013, totals 339,334. Of that, there are 30, 885 female veterans and 308,449 males veterans.

Venturing to rural areas, the MVC, with the Department of Veterans Affairs, provides a convenient and mobile place for veterans to receive readjustment counseling and informational resources in confidence.

Glen Phillips, a Liberty native and Service Officer for Veteran of Foreign Wars Post #5704 in Liberty, is doing more than his fair share to reach out to veterans in Casey County.

"Our mission at the VFW is to help veterans. We decided that we wanted to be more proactive and reach out to as many veterans as we can," Phillips said. "I know there are veterans out there that don't know what they are entitled to. We want to find them and help them get the benefits and services that they deserve."

Phillips, alongside Carla Loveless-Tackett, Readjustment Counselor for the Lexington Vet Center, brought their services to Casey County in an effort to provide guidance to veterans in the area as well as surrounding areas.

"Our goal is maximum outreach in Kentucky communities," Loveless-Tackett said. "And working hand in hand with the veterans themselves."

Established by Congress in 1979, the Vet Center Program stemmed from the realization that several Vietnam and Vietnam Era veterans were still having trouble readjusting to civilian life.

During a period of conflict, if a soldier is deployed and steps onto foreign soil, he is automatically eligible for The Vet Center's services, with no fees applied.

"If a veteran has ever been sexually harrassed or suffered from sexual trauma of any kind, they are automatically eligible," Loveless-Tackett said, "whether they have deployed or not."

One of the most important aspects of the Vet Center is the confidentiality of all information that is provided under the Privacy Act of 1975.

There is only one MVC in Kentucky and it is on the road each day, moving through cities and counties to provide veterans across the states with services such as counseling for Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder, Military Sexual Trauma, bereavement counseling, marriage and family counseling, and resources like information about VA benefits and suicide prevention referrals.

"We are very different from the VA Medical Centers," Loveless-Tackett said. "Our group and individual counseling does not follow the typical clinical method. There are no doctors, nurses, or medication administration. But, we provide education about all veterans' benefits and help to guide them in the right direction, if those services are deemed necessary."

Breaking down the bureaucratic barriers to achieve and accomplish the goals of the veterans is what the Vet Center is all about, Loveless-Tackett said.

The majority of the Vet Center staff are veterans themselves. This is the case for Joshua Goss, Outreach Coordinator and MVC technician, who served in the U.S. Marine Corps for six years, with two deployments, one to Afghanistan and one to Iraq.

"I love working with veterans and listening to their stories," Goss said. "They help me a lot. It's a big brotherhood. You can feel their pain and really see what they need help with."

Goss, who had hopes of re-enlisting, was unable to because of the injuries he suffered. Instead, Goss decided to further his education, earning his Bachelor's degree in Homeland Security at Eastern Kentucky University, as well as an MA in Safety Security and Emergency Management. Additionally, he is also on his way to earning a Doctrine in Educational Leadership.

The MVC is also called an "office on wheels" that provides emergency support in the event of a natural disaster. The vehicle is equipped with six phone lines, a satellite dish that connects to communications and audio-visual equipment, a fax line, notebook computers, four encrypted computer lines, and wi-fi gear.

During an emergency, the vehicle contains a medical exam table, a defibrillator, a first aid kid, a shower, several beds, a refrigerator and a microwave.

With June being PTSD Awareness Month, Loveless-Tackett and Phillips want to do their part by spreading the word and letting Kentucky veterans know that help is out there and willing to come to them to make sure their voices are heard.

"If there are any veterans in Casey County, or surrounding areas that need direction, guidance, or help they can call me," Phillips said. He can be reached at 606-706-7786.

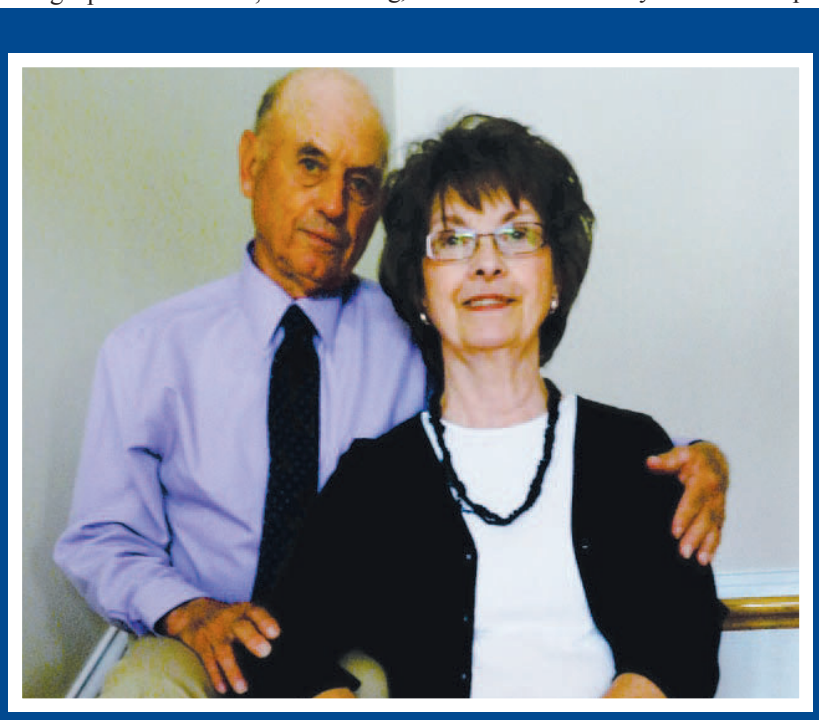

Loveless-Tackett can be found at 107 North Second St., Stanford, on Mondays, Thursdays, and alternating Saturdays. She welcomes any veteran or friends of veterans seeking information or help of any kind. Her cell phone number is 859-494-6896. Loveless-Tackett's phone and voicemail are both secure lines and no one's information will be seen or heard by anyone but herself.

The hours of operation for the Vet Center are catered to the needs of veterans and are regularly altered to fit those schedules. Normal hours of operation for the Lexington Vet Center are Monday and Wednesday 7 a.m.-6 p.m. and Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday from 7 a.m.-5 p.m.

Kentucky's Mobile Vet Center came to Casey County last week in an effort to educate veterans about the benefits and programs available to them. The MVC travels across all of Kentucky's 120 counties and is a part of the state's Department of Veterans Affairs.

Mary Sue Shoopman

As the weeks before the May 20th primary turn into days, I would like to take this opportunity to ask any of you who I haven't been able to visit with in person for your vote and support in the Republican primary for Casey County Judge Executive.

As I have traveled all over our beautiful county, I have been reminded of the high quality of our residents and our ability to accomplish great things when we work together. I promise to use my years of experience in various business positions, committees and volunteer work to execute the office of Judge Executive in a manner that will honor the position. We need to work together, city government, Chamber of Commerce, economic development, along with our state representatives and senators, on getting assistance for new infrastructure to promote business and industry in our county. I will seek assistance with our roads and other interests. I support all our volunteer organizations, Ag/Expo Center and our new college.

We must have a vision to work toward. I want to thank everyone who has had a smile, a warm handshake and an encouraging word during this campaign. The spirit of our community is the reason why I want to continue to improve our county. I encourage you to vote on May 20th.

Man sentenced on child pornography charges

By Larry Rowell
Editor

A Casey County man has been sentenced to 10 years in prison on 39 counts of possessing and distributing child pornography.

Franklin Gene Clark, 31, formerly of 3340 South Ky. 837, appeared on April 28 in Casey County Circuit Court before Judge Judy D. Vance.

Vance denied Clark the possibility of probation when she handed down the sentence on 23 counts of possession of matter portraying sex performance by a minor and 16 counts of distribution of matter portraying sexual performance by a minor.

The charges stem from an Aug. 1, 2012 arrest when Kentucky State Police investigators discovered that Clark had sent sexually explicit images of a child to an out-of-state recipient.

A subsequent search of Clark's residence turned up at least 100 files containing images of child pornography.

In other actions:

■ Andrew Luttrell stipulated to violating his probation. In lieu of revocation, spend 30 days in jail, credit for time served and then be placed back on supervised probation.

■ Dakota Tyler Lee Lemons tested positive for marijuana in court and had his bond revoked. Lemons faces charges of receiving stolen property, under $10,000, third-degree burglary, theft by unlawful taking, and three counts first-degree wanton endangerment.

Casey County man found not guilty of rape

By Larry Rowell
Editor

A Casey County man on trial accused of raping a 13-year-old girl in 2012 was acquitted of the charge.

Ryan Richards, now 21, appeared before Judge Judy Vance in Casey Circuit Court on May 7 with Public Defender Shelby Horn representing him.

Jeff Eastham, assistant commonwealth attorney, prosecuted the case.

Richards was accused of raping a 13-year-old girl on June 10, 2012 at his brother's house on Ky. 78 in Casey County.

The Commonwealth called three witnesses — KSP Trooper Mike Woodrum, Donna Brown, the girl's mother, and the girl who alleges that she was raped.

Woodrum testified that he was called to Brown's home to take a report about the incident on Nov. 27, 2012, some five months after it supposedly happened.

Further, Woodrum said that a rape kit couldn't be used because 96 hours after a rape, there is no more physical evidence and he had none.

Commonwealth's case

The Commonwealth called witnesses who presented a much different case than witnesses for the defense.

The girl testified that on June 10, 2012, that she, her mom, her four younger siblings, Robert Richards, and his two children were at Robert's home on Ky. 78 along with Ryan, his friend Ryan Goode, and Margie Richards, Ryan's mother.

Donna Brown testified earlier that she was dating Robert Richards, Ryan's brother, in June of 2012.

On that day, the girl testified that Ryan Richards asked her to stay and play video games while the others, except for Ryan Goode and Margie, were getting ready to leave the house.

"So he went and asked my mom and my mom asked Robby if it was OK and Robby assured mom it would have been," the girl said.

With only Ryan Richards, Ryan Goode, and Margie in the house with the girl, she said that she and Richards watched a movie in the living room adjacent to the kitchen where Goode was playing a video game. She said Margie was elsewhere in the house.

The girl then said that Richards grabbed her and hugged her, laid her down on the couch and pulled her pants down and raped her.

"I kept telling him to stop repeatedly and he wouldn't. He kept saying 'please' and then after that he said 'please for a birthday present' because his birthday was the next day," the girl testified.

She testified that after the incident which she said lasted three minutes, Richards went into the bathroom and when he came out, he and Goode took her home.

As to why the girl waited until after Thanksgiving to tell anyone, she said that she was scared her mother would hate her and disown her because she was no longer a virgin.

The girl asked her mother if she could stay longer and Richards would bring her home.

Victor testified that when the three arrived at his house, they ate dinner and then sat around and visited before Richards and Goode took the girl home.

However, Victor testified that he raised the issue of his son being alone and said she and Robert were coming by to pick her up.

Defense's case

In his opening statement, Horn called the commonwealth's allegation of rape based on the girl's statement "a fanciful story, and not what happened at all."

Ryan Richards testified that on June 10, it was Robert and Donna who dropped the girl off at the house on Ky. 78 where he and Ryan Goode were staying at the time.

Richards said that his mother was staying at an aunt's house because of some medical issues she was having.

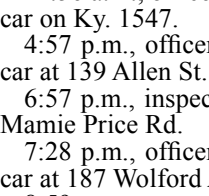

Further, Richards stated that the three watched a three hour long movie and then played video games before going to his father's house half-a-mile down the road for a birthday dinner. Victor Richards, Ryan's father, corroborated his son's testimony later when he took the stand.

But before going to Victor's house, Richards said that Brown called the girl with the girl and the girl said nothing happened, that the three of them were together.

"(The girl) spoke up and said nothing went on," he said.

Ryan Goode also testified that the three were together, watched a movie, played video games, went to Victor's house for dinner, and then took the girl home.

The jury took about 30 minutes to bring in the not guilty verdict.
